GIVES EXCELLENT CONCERT

Community Symphony Orchestra Directed by Hamlin Cogswell.

Not for some time has Washington had the benefits of a local orchestra. The concert last evening, given by the Washington Community Symphony Orchestra, under Hamila Coga-well, in the Central High School Auditorium, proved that this new or-ganization has much to give of musi-cal excellence that should contribute largely, particularly to the younger generation, in giving them under-standing and in familiarizing them with this highest form of music. Mr. Cogswell 'and his sixty-five

Mr. Cogswell and his sixty-five players achieved a decided success, while Mrs. Franceska Kaspar Lawson, soprano, as soloist, was heard to equal advantage. Mr. Cogswell-brought his orchestra up to a high degree of efficiency in the Schubert "Unfinished Symphony." Their tone was ever musical, the melody values was ever musical, the melody values. were well sustained, and in shading and dramatic import they responded to many niceties from the conductor's haton.

In rhythm, shading, and dynamics Mr. Cogswell was exceedingly forceful. Termed a "popular" concert, it was so chiefly in the overture by Rosse that was*read with an ingrati-that was read with an ingrati-ating spirit, and in the encore it brought forth.

The two Grieg "Elegiac Melodies" were admirable bits of tone painting, while the final suite from Humper-dinck's "The Miracle," presented Sam-uel Wood, organist, in an effective solo.

Mrs. Lawson gave the "Swiss Echo Song," with facile coloratura, while the two Japanese songs of Cadman were most interesting, the Spohi "Rose So Softly Blooming," a con trasting bit of classicism, and Hen schel's "Spring," a fitting climax. As encore to the echo song Mrs. Lawson expressed the sympathy of ballad singing in her feeling and diction of Dvorak's "Songs My Mother Taught Me." Miss Eulalie Buchanan was a sympathetic accompanist.

DRAMA LEAGUE RECITAL. Literature and music combine in the dramatic recital to be given this evening under the auspices of the Washington Center of the Drama League at the Corcoran Gallery of Art. Mrs. Florence Lyon, reader, gives novelties in the poems of Oscar Wilde, set to music by Liza Lehmann, and to this distinct and new field of art the music of Stanley Hawley is especially adapted. Miss Dorothy Burch will be heard both in plane solos and as accompanist for Mrs. Lyon.

MISS SYLVESTRE IN RECITAL Miss Guadelupe Sylvester, a pianist from the Philippines, was heard in recital at Studio Hall last evening. Miss Sylvester, an attractive picture in na-tive costume, played a program ranging from Schumann to Debussy.
